Subject: Navigability Study of Three Rivers

I am an angler and a lifelong Oregonian. I am also a land surveyor, with a special interest in navigability issues. I believe there is little doubt that the portion of Three Rivers in question should be deemed navigable, following the strict interpretation of the law. Personal feelings of the landowners should have no weight in the determination process.

Furthermore, there are numerous waters in Oregon that are navigable in fact (therefore in law) that have not yet been adjudicated. I believe that in reality, the actual work for all these studies really has been completed, but politics have kept them off the books.
